For those who suffer from epilepsy, it is necessary to visit exciting destinations and tourist places. Such visits bring some change in their behavioural pattern, making them mentally capable to fight the disease by will.

On this visit's importance, Dr Nirmal Surya says, "Besides treatment it is important for patients to interact with other patients which gives them confidence to fight back

With the disease. There are different kinds of Epilepsy disease, and there is lot of myth about them. So when patients interact with other patients it clears lot of their pre ideas and motivates them and they see other patients recovering well from the disease.
